THINKING B-I-G . . . Keith Pischel, right, manager of Pacific State Bank, 21600 Normandie, gets oriented on his job as general chairman for the 1964 Red Cross fund campaign in Torrance from Wendell Black, president of Harbor College, who will direct the March drive throughout the Southern region of the Los Angeles Red Cross Chapter.

"THE BIG '64"

Most people are a little too busy to be expected to do volunteer work for Red Cross. But when Keith Pischel, vice president of Pacific State Bank and manager of the bank's Torrance Branch at 21600 S. Normandie was asked to serve as chairman of the 1964 Red Cross fund campaign in Torrance, he accepted. It would have been hard under any circumstances to say no when asked by Wendell Black, president of Harbor College and volunteer chairman for the March drive in the Southern region of the Los Angeles Red Cross Chapter for the second consecutive year. After serving as chairman for the commerce and industry phase of the 1963 Red Cross campaign in Torrance, Pischel knew the workings of the fund drive.

UNDER HIS direction, the C & I campaign last year netted 106 per cent of its quota. In telling Pischel on the idea of taking the over-all campaign chairmanship for Torrance, Black said, "When you've benefited from Red Cross services as I have, you are glad to serve." To illustrate his point he told of his own personal experience during World War II. The merchant ship he was aboard was torpedoed in the Indian Ocean.

"WE DRIFTED for days before being picked up," he said. "By the time we landed in Fremantle, Australia, most of us were in pretty bad shape." "But Red Cross was there to meet us. For those who had lost all personal belongings, they had gifts,—little things like razors—that can mean so much. And they helped us to contact our families, so everyone could know all was well. It was a heartwarming experience." Besides its program of services to men in the armed forces, the Red Cross' blood program has special meaning to Black. It was through the efforts of Red Cross that the 20 plus pints of blood were made available when his young grandson underwent open heart surgery not long ago.

WHILE services to men in the armed forces and their families and the blood program receive the greatest share of each Red Cross dollar, Black told Pischel of other programs and the growing demands for Red Cross services. As an example he cited the first aid and water safety programs in Torrance. During the past year, 1,074 persons received certificates for the completion of Red Cross first aid courses which were taught here. Another 1,807 Torrance persons, enrolled in 153 classes, received Red Cross water safety certificates.

TO KEEP pace with the community's growth and needs, Red Cross requires a corresponding growth of financial support and a stronger personal support in terms of time, energy skill and knowledge on a voluntary basis. Although already serving as a member of the board of directors for the Torrance-Lomita Branch of the L. A. Red Cross chapter, Pischel has agreed to extend his volunteer

PARADE TROPHIES . . . Several of ten trophies to be awarded in the second annual south bay district National Boy Scout Week commemoration parade are admired by Ted Olson, left, parade director; Mayor Albert Isen; Nancy Schindele, 17, left of North High, and Gilma Martin, 17, of West High. The parade will be in downtown Torrance at 10:30 next Saturday morning. More than 30 floats and 10 bands will be entered. (Herald Photo)

Torrance Banker Heading Red Cross Fund Campaign

Most people are a little too busy to be expected to do volunteer work for Red Cross. But when Keith Pischel, vice president of Pacific State Bank and manager of the bank's Torrance Branch at 21600 S. Normandie was asked to serve as chairman of the 1964 Red Cross fund campaign in Torrance, he accepted. It would have been hard under any circumstances to say no when asked by Wendell Black, president of Harbor College and volunteer chairman for the March drive in the Southern region of the Los Angeles Red Cross Chapter for the second consecutive year.
